I Have reviewed some of the actions to be taken against Microsoft and they are just giving them more reason to be anti competitive. By giving schools computers and software they increase their educational presence and also take a tax write off. They have a history of offering low prices for competitors ideas and if they don't get it they offer it from free forcing the other company out of business. Please consider breaking up and fineing them to the maximum. Allow more free competition and other computer languages to flourish. Thanks Stanley Silverman Plantation Fl.
